

BIBLICAL EXEGESIS, M.A.

The M.A. in Biblical Exegesis aims to mobilize students to study Scripture in the original languages within an evangelical framework. The curriculum revolves around building language competency and cultivating an integrated approach to exegesis, such as factoring in hermeneutical theory, historical and cultural contexts, literary genres, and the theological contours of the canon. Students are to choose from three concentrations within this degree:

- Old Testament concentration,
- New Testament concentration, and
- The Old and New Testament concentration.

All concentrations require 44 credit hours and require courses in hermeneutics, testament-specific exegesis, language-based book studies, and theology.

The program does not require a comprehensive exam or a thesis paper. However, all students in the M.A. in Biblical Exegesis program are required to demonstrate four specific areas of academic competence through the compilation of a dossier, reflecting faculty approval on each of four target areas as represented by a portfolio of four faculty-approved academic papers completed as part of the program.

Ancient Language Scholarship Program

The M.A. in Biblical Exegesis requires either 8 or 16 hours of prerequisites in Hebrew and/or Greek, depending on the chosen track. If an incoming residential student has not met these prerequisites prior to enrolling, the student will take GREK 101 and/or GREK 102, and/or HEBR 101 and/or HEBR 102 at Wheaton College to attain proficiency. Please note that these classes do not count toward the completion of the 44-credit-hour Biblical Exegesis degree.

Wheaton College provides an Ancient Language scholarship for on-campus students who take Hebrew and/or Greek pre-requisite language courses at Wheaton. This scholarship does not cover the cost for ancient language courses taken at another college or university.
